B-GALACTOSIDASE FROM VARIOUS PLANT SOURCES: A REMEDY FOR LACTOSE INTOLERANCE

Approximately 70% of the world population has hypolactasia (lactase deficiency), which often remains undiagnosed. Lactose intolerance is a consequence of lactase deficiency, a condition where lactose, a disaccharide molecule found in milk and dairy products, cannot be directly absorbed through the wall of the small intestine into the bloodstream, so, in absence of lactase, passes intact into the colon. The aim of this project is to find an alternative for the treatment of lactose intolerance by utilizing some commonly used food items which are readily available in our kitchen. β -galactosidase (lactase) is a glycoside hydrolase enzyme that catalyzes the hydrolysis of β -galactosides into monosaccharides through the breaking of a glycosidic bond. Plants like Almond (Prunus dulcis), chick pea (Cicer arietinum) and many more are a very rich source of this enzyme. This study involves the extraction and purification of enzymes from different sources, and phytochemical screening of the samples for detection of compounds present. Activity of enzymes in different extracts will be measured separately using spectrophotometric analysis.

Keywords: β -galactosidase, Lactose intolerance, spectrophotometric analysis.

WOMEN IN THE FIELD OF AGRICULTURE AND FARMING

Sonali Xalxo

Ranchi University, Phasia Porhatoli, Gumla- 835207, Jharkhand

Agriculture is the primary source of livelihood for about 58 percent of India's population. This case study depicts the story of women empowerment in the field of farming where Sumitra Devi and Lal Muni who have started the company "Churchu Nari Urja Farmer Producer Company Limited" in 2018 with the sole objective to unite women farmers and raise their standard of living. They united women from remote areas and started this company to protect farmers from the mediators. This organization provided those seeds, fertilizers and helped them in cultivation and selling their produce in the market. Today, more than 7000 women farmers are members, and 2500 women are shareholders of this company. The eminent feature of this company is that all the board members of this company are also women. In the initial phase they struggled as women farmers were not convinced with their ideas. But today this innovative idea gave them their own identity, as their efforts gradually paid off and became an inspiration
